About:

I'm originally from Dublin, Ireland.

My career first brought me to Japan in 2013. My company, at the time, had its Japan headquarters in Yokohama. I've spent my 20-year career working for multinationals in the Technology sector.

Since 2014, I've been a Program Manager with Rakuten. Based in Tokyo, I help Rakuten expand their e-commerce services to European and North American markets.

When I first moved to Japan, the IJCC were of great assistance to me – providing contacts, advice, encouragement and a support network. I'm excited for the future of Ireland Japan business relations. We have plenty to look forward to as business activity between the two countries continues to go from strength to strength.
